

MAURITANIA Price Bulletin

December 2011

The Famine Early Warning Systems Network (FEWS NET) monitors trends in staple food prices in countries vulnerable to food insecurity. For each FEWS NET country and region, the Price Bulletin provides a set of charts showing monthly prices in the current marketing year in selected urban centers and allowing users to compare current trends with both five-year average prices, indicative of seasonal trends, and prices in the previous year.

Wheat and local rice are the most important food commodities for the poorest households. Middle income and more wealthy households consume imported rice instead. The Socogim market in Nouakchott is the most important market in the country and has linkages to Senegal and Morocco.
